MEETING WITH THE CONFRES OF THE OMNES GENTES MISSION IN PARRAMATTA

Frs Kevin Redmond (Australia), Floyd Gatana (Oceania), John Larsen (Superior General) and Kevin Medilo (Asia)

After completing the visitation in the District of Australia, Fr. John Larsen met with our omnes gentes community in Hunters Hill for one morning of prayer and conversation. This omnes gentes community is based in the diocese of Parramatta, Sydney. It is an international Marist mission community praying and working in parochial, pastoral and educational care, mostly among migrants. The time together began with an extended period of prayer before the Blessed Sacrament and concluded with a celebration of the Eucharist. The conversation centered around what “communion for mission” means in this particular context and, specifically, how our unique Marist charism shapes our life and mission in the local diocese. Overall, our confreres are very happy with the way the mission has begun and the direction it is taking, in spite of the many challenges of a new Marist venture.

VERGUET IN ENGLISH

The Marist Fathers Australian District has published an English translation of C. M. Léopold Verguet, History of the First Catholic Mission in the Vicariate of Melanesia, translated by Sr Marie Lamerand sm and laid out in the style of the original by Fr Merv Duffy sm. The book is a history of the first Catholic mission to New Caledonia, New Hebrides and Solomon Islands beginning in 1844. The author was one of the French Marists on that mission between 1844 and 1848. The text follows the course of his journey from France with Bishops Epalle and Collomb and includes periods in New Holland and New Zealand.

The text is available online and is part of Marist and Pacific Mission History library managed by Fr Andrew Murray sm, who collects and creates electronic copies of publications on the Pacific mission from the four branches of the Marist Family and other professional authors.
